

Regina's 30-Day BP Triangle Reset

Your day-by-day plan, built from your assessment — Joel Polley, RN

Your starting line. Daytime 108/72 (beautiful) · evening 140/89 (the one we are fixing) · pulse 79 · weight 125 · A1C 5.7 · total cholesterol 213 · no BP medication.

How this works. One new action a day. You keep everything from the days before, so by Day 30 you are doing the whole protocol without thinking about it. By Day 30 you are aiming for your evening number down into the range your daytime already lives in, a calm you can actually reach at night, and a one-page record you can hand your doctor with pride.

Safety first. You are not on blood-pressure medication and your daytime numbers are excellent, so this plan protects what is working and aims squarely at the evening number and the evening calm. Everything here is lifestyle and education alongside your own doctor. Given your health history, run any new supplement past your doctor before you start it.

SODIUM PRESSURE

Days 1–10 · sodium & fluid — aim the evening number

Every evening, all 30 days: twenty-five things you are grateful for, written or said aloud + your seated reading, same time, same arm. Keep every day you have already started.

Day 1	Baseline. Log your morning and evening readings, seated 5 minutes first. Tonight, start your evening gratitude — twenty-five, written or aloud.
Day 2	Swap the evening green tea for caffeine-free. Green tea has caffeine, and evening caffeine quietly lifts the exact number you are fighting. This is the most important change in the plan.
Day 3	Bring in Steady tea in the evening — caffeine-free hibiscus + hawthorn, the most studied botanical for sodium pressure and the warm replacement for that green tea.
Day 4	Front-load your fluids: most of your water before mid-afternoon, taper in the evening. This is your lever on the 3am bathroom wake-up.
Day 5	Breathe before your evening reading — 5 slow minutes, so you capture a calm number, not a keyed-up one.
Day 6	Trim one hidden-sodium food (canned, sauce, restaurant). Your daytime 108/72 is beautiful — we are protecting it.
Day 7	Dim the lights after dinner — a first cue to your body that evening is for winding down.
Day 8	Check your 3am pattern. Is the fluid taper helping? Adjust the evening cutoff if not.
Day 9	Add one extra potassium food — avocado, greens, beans — on top of your already-clean plate.
Day 10	Sodium check-in. Compare your evening number on Day 1 versus tonight. Watch the gap start to close.

Sodium supplement: Steady tea — bpquiz.com/tea

Caffeine-free hibiscus + hawthorn — the direct swap for your evening green tea. Same warm ritual, none of the caffeine nudging your evening BP up. Introduced Day 3.

SUGAR PRESSURE

Days 11–20 · energy, digestion, the after-meal slump

Every evening, all 30 days: twenty-five things you are grateful for, written or said aloud + your seated reading, same time, same arm. Keep every day you have already started.

Day 11	Shrink the evening portion (keep your 6pm cutoff — you already do this well). A heavy late meal drives the bloating and the low energy after.
Day 12	Biggest meal at breakfast today; energy follows the sun, and so should your plate.
Day 13	Gentle after-dinner walk — just 5 to 10 minutes. It moves digestion along and softens the evening number.
Day 14	Cinnamon on breakfast.
Day 15	Apple cider vinegar — a splash in water before your two biggest meals.
Day 16	Eat slower and sit a few minutes after meals — a small change with a real difference for bloating.
Day 17	Add gentle morning resistance — bands, bodyweight, or light weights, about 10 minutes. Morning or midday only.
Day 18	Keep resistance out of the evening. To answer your question directly: yes, strength work helps your metabolism and bones — but hard exercise late raises cortisol and evening BP and steals sleep. Morning strength, evening calm.
Day 19	Notice your post-meal energy. Is the slump lifting with the lighter, earlier meals?
Day 20	Sugar check-in. How is digestion and energy versus Day 11?

Sugar + calm mineral: Calm Magnesium — bpquiz.com/magnesium

You already take magnesium at night — good instinct. Calm Magnesium is a clean option that supports a healthy insulin response, relaxes the vessels, and eases you toward the evening calm you are chasing.

A brand I partner with and earn a small commission on — I only point you to what I would take myself. Given your health history, run any new supplement past your doctor first.

STRESS PRESSURE

Days 21–30 · the evening calm you cannot reach — your real corner

Every evening, all 30 days: twenty-five things you are grateful for, written or said aloud + your seated reading, same time, same arm. Keep every day you have already started.

Day 21	Reinforce: no evening caffeine. The green-tea swap from Day 2 is the biggest hidden driver of 'I can't reach calm.' Hold it firm.
Day 22	Bedtime phone stories: dim the room and keep them short, or trade one night for quiet. Your mind needs the off-ramp.
Day 23	Build the wind-down ritual: Steady tea, low light, slow breathing — the same three, every night.
Day 24	Start Saffron (bpquiz.com/saffron), aimed straight at your evening calm. See the note below.
Day 25	Write your twenty-five gratitudes down tonight — deepen the practice you began on Day 1.
Day 26	Add 5 minutes of stillness or prayer before bed (the Trust pillar).

Day 27	Rate your evening calm 1 to 10 and jot it with your reading. Watch it climb.
Day 28	Compile your 30 days of morning and evening readings onto one page.
Day 29	Prep what you will show your doctor — proof that lifestyle is moving your numbers, no medication needed.
Day 30	Your goal, in your words. Bring the record to your doctor with pride. This is you feeling your body work the way it was made to — naturally, with what it needs. Keep all 30 days going.

Stress botanical: Saffron — bpquiz.com/saffron

Real research behind mood and evening calm — aimed straight at your one struggle: reaching a settled, quiet state at night. Introduced Day 24.

A partner brand I earn a small commission on. If you take any antidepressant (an SSRI), clear saffron with your prescriber first. And given your health history, run it past your doctor.

INCLUDED WITH YOUR SPRINT

Three bonuses, no extra charge

1. Your full BP Triangle Reset kit — a $48 value, yours free

The complete kit sits behind every action in this plan — the deeper reference for your Sodium, Sugar, and Stress work. It is waiting for you at bpquiz.com/downloads. (If you have any trouble opening it, reply and I will send the files straight to you.)

2. A free seat in my 3-Day BP Reset Challenge — August 4–6 (live)

Three evenings, live with me and the group — the perfect on-ramp to your 30 days. Others pay to join; as my Sprint client it is included, no charge. Just reply with the word CHALLENGE and I will reserve your free seat and send your join link before we start.

3. Wednesday night group coaching — every week, live on Zoom

You asked for a partner you could bring questions to. Here she is, every week. Bring your readings, bring your questions. This is where consistency stops being lonely.

Join Wednesday night live: <https://us06web.zoom.us/j/81541901408?pwd=8aOJeGbTcHJEsHO35be9hfOk2k5acm.1>

You are already doing so much right — daily walks, a clean plate, magnesium, an early food cutoff. This is not a rebuild. It is a handful of precise moves at the one time of day that fights you: the evening. Any reading that worries you, any question — reply to me. You have a partner in this now.

— Joel Polley, RN

This plan is education and lifestyle support to stand alongside your own doctor, never instead of them. Your doctor makes every decision about your medication; you never start, stop, or change a prescription on your own. Supplement links marked as partner products earn me a small commission at no extra cost to you; I only point you to what I would use myself.